DENIES J. DEMPSEY WAS DRAFT DODGER

Kearns Defends Champion on Slackerism Charge. Helped Raise $100,000.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., January 14 .-Denial of charges that Jack Dempsey, heavyweight pugilistic champion, was a "draft dodger" and "slacker" and defense of his conduct during the war was made by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, in a signed statement issued here

"Dempsey was not a 'draft dodger' during the war," Kearns' statement said. "Any one who makes such a charge cannot support it with facts.

Did Not Claim Exemption. "When the draft came Dempsey was placed in Class 4-A because he was married, and, in addition, was supporting a mother, an invalid brother and a sister. Dempsey made no claims for examption.

for exemption.
"Some time later the draft board resome time later the draft board readjusting classifications placed Dempsey in Class A-1, but almost immediately afterward put him in class 2-B. He remained there during the rest of the war. If the conflict had lasted a few weeks longer, it seems a certainty he would have performed service." Kearns recounted Dempsey's services as a riveter in Philadelphia and Seattle shipyards, and added:

Eastern High School's basket tossers displayed a lack of team work yesterday afternoon and as a result the Eusiness quint grabbed the game played on the floor of the Catholic University gym by the score of 19 to 11. Business kept on the defensive throughout the contest, and, although their play was nothing to boast of, Eastern was even looser.

The individual playing of Myers and McCloskey for Eastern stood out, but the pair could not carry along the entire quint. Williams of Business was the headliner for his side, but he received winning assistance from Meaney. Goetz and Held. Line-up and summary:

President Bradley of the Virginia Base

Ball League has announced the signing of Albert Orth to umpire in the Virginia Circuit this year. At the time Orth entered the Army he was an umpire in the National League. His home is in Lynchburg. Va., and this is said to be the reason for his willingness to desert the majors for the minors.

All Hard Luck Records Held by Ray Schmandt

Raymond Schmandt of the Brooklyn club is doubtless of-fering up many prayers for bet-ter luck next season. Beat Schmandt's hard-luck record if you can: 1916: Disabled early in his minor league season. 1917: Broke a leg sliding to base—out of it most of the summer.

1918: Spiked by Leslie Mann while he was hitting over .300 and looked like a whale. Taken into the Army as soon as he got well. Cracked leg again playing foot ball with his regimental team.

1919: Sick three-fourths of the senson and unable to show his speed. And he's really an A1 ball player—if that luck ever lets up on him.

No foot ball season in the history of the game has had a longer continued aftermath than the season of "He also was appearing in fistic contests at benefits for the different war charities. By this means approximately $100,000 was raised for the various war funds."

Dempsey paid traveling expenses and fought without remuneration, Kearns said, and "frequently was 'broke' as a consequence."

The same of the third factor that Harvard journeyed clear across the continent to play a match game with Oregon at the tournament of roses in Pasadena on New Year day, 1920, kept the foot ball enthusiastis at a high tension and led rought without remuneration, Kearns said, and "frequently was broke' as a consequence."

"Those who are charging Dempsey with being a 'slacker' because he worked in the shipyards and helped to raise nearly $100,000 for the various war charfties," the statement concluded, "are smudging the reputation of every other exempted man who served the nation in the Army at home."

Condemned in Legion Posts.

Kearns defense of Dempsey is the outgrowth of condemnatory resolutions passed by American Legion posts in several states, including Texas, Colorado, Indiana and Ohio, based on his failure to enter the service. The New Jersey athletic commission also has announced Dempsey will not be permitted to box in that state. National officers of the American Legion yesterday announced the organization has not considered to box in that state. National officers of the Mamerican Legion yesterday announced the organization has not considered the organization has not considered the organization has not considered to box in that state. National officers of the American Legion yesterday announced the organization has not considered the organization has tion of paying a coach more than college professor. Unfortunately, the good old law of supply and demand seems to be entering into this foot ball situation quite as strongly as it does into all other affairs of life. Naturally, it seems almost ridiculous to think of offers made to Dempsey, the boxer, at a quarter of a million dollars for one fight, and then to think how many teachers' salarles this amount would pay for many years.

But human arrangement has never been able to supplant or very materially interfere with the action of that natural law which goes on steadfastly defeating legislation to reduce the high cost of living, and, in fact, winning out against all efforts of human pigmies to alter it.

By Billy Evans

Johnny Tobin, who played such great ball for the St. Louis Browns last year; Wally Pipp, brilliant first sacker of the New York Yankees, and George Mogridge, old reliable of Miller Huggins' pitching staff, figured in an unusual play last summer that still has fans talking about it and wondering what actually took place. I was umpiring the bases in the game and will let New York fans who saw the play and are perhaps wondering what happened, as well as other fans, in on the facts.

The rules say a base runner is out if, while the ball is in play, he be touched by the ball in the hands of the fielder, unless some portion of his person is touching the base, provided the ball be held by the fielder after touching the base runner. Base ball authorities have always ruled a ball is held unless it falls to the ground. While a bit out of the ordinary, it has base runner stealing second. If touched with the ball before reaching second base, is called out even though the fielder making the play would juggle the ball after the touch. It his case the juggling is held not to affect the play, provided it does not touch the ground.

Tobin, adept at dragging a ball down the first base line, pulled one in the direction of Wally Pipp, guarding that base for New York. Pipp got the ball about ten feet in front of the bag. At that moment Tobin, almost upon him, tried to hurdle past Pipp. The New York first sacker touched if Tobin, but the force of the collision caused the ball to hop out of his hand. Mogridge, a clever fielder for a pitcher, came over to assist in any way possible. He was so close to Pipp when the ball was knocked out of the more and the provided the past Pipp when the ball was knocked out of the more and the provided the past Pipp when the ball was knocked out of the more and the provided the past Pipp when the ball was knocked out of the more and the provided the past Pipp when the ball man to both the provided the past Pipp when the ball to hop out of his hand. Mogridge, a clever fielder for a pitcher, came over to assist in any way possible. He was so close to Pipp when the ball was knocked out of Walter's hands that he got it before it had touched the ground. In the meantime Tobin, jolted by hitting Pipp, staggered past first base without touching it. Most of the players were a bit at sea as to what had happened, because everything took place so quickly. Several yelled to me for a decision. In the meantime the St. Louis coacher had made it known to Tobin he had missed first base, and Johnny regained it as fast as possi. "Dear Mr. Jennings—Don't swell up a decision. In the meantime the St.
Louis coacher had made it known to Tobin he had missed first base, and Johnny regained it as fast as possible. Had Mogridge touched first base before Tobin had gotten back he would have been called out. Some
New York players argued that since "Dear Mr. Jennings—Don't swell up over the beauty notices recently handed you. Remember Lincoln, Wilson and Roosevelt were far from being matinee idols, but they had brains."

The Catholic University's freshmen quint and the Western High tossers had quite a stiff battle yesterday afternoon in the gym of the former, the Brooklanders obtaining the verdict by 20 to 15. At the end of the first half both sides were sparring for breath, with the score a tie at 7 each, but Western shot a scare into the home team by shooting to the front in the third period, when the figures showed 15 to 8, in their favor. Western failed to hold their speed, the Brooklanders wearing them down in the final period, scoring almost at will.

Failure to cash on fouls proved the downfall of the Western quint, as while William H. Edwards, collector Power, which might mean merely more speed in less capable hands, has become flexibility, responsiveness, comfort and safety in Pierce-Arrows. The ability to run on high gear from three to seventy-five miles an hour, and back, to overtake passing cars or ascend steep hills without shifting, means flexibility. To start from a standstill, and accelerate in onefifth less time, is responsiveness. The quickness with which the car gets out of a tight place or shortens the time required to pass and overtake another car adds safety.

To its owner the Pierce-Arrow has boundless power because it has all the power he will ever be called upon to use.
